Connectivity Changes for November 2010

In my first Connectivity Changes post, I committed to providing monthly updates. Looking back, I should have included a “no changes clause”. Something to the effect of, “if there are no connectivity changes for the month, I won’t be providing an update”.

Having neglected to include the aforementioned “no changes clause” in my original post, I now feel compelled to explicitly state there were no updates published for the month of November.

In the future, if no connectivity changes are published for the current month, I won’t be providing an update!
